The Essex Cricket Museum Images: By permission of the Peter Edwards Museum and Library

The Peter Edwards Museum and Library, or the Essex Cricket Museum, is the official museum of Essex County Cricket Club, housed at the Ambassador Cruise Line County Ground, New Writtle Street, Chelmsford. It displays a collection of photographs, books, equipment, clothing and other memorabilia relating to the club and its players, dating back to the foundation of Essex CCC in 1876.

The museum is named after the Club's former Secretary/General Manager from 1979 to 2000. It was opened in 2006 thanks to the kind generosity of the late Sue Edwards, Peter's wife.

The museum recently celebrated the 150th anniversary of Essex County Cricket Club and its own 20th anniversary with a set of eleven new permanent display boards, some of which are shown above. In addition to highlighting the professional men's team, a thematic organisation now covers the women's and ability teams, the next generation, and the grounds and groundsmen. A roll of honour – images of over 50 leading players - is displayed around the museum above the main boards.

Our visit will be at 11:00 a.m. Details with regard to parking etc. will be sent nearer to the visit.

The cost of this event will be Members £7.50 and non-Members £9.50. Please return the form below with a cheque made payable to The Friends of Chelmsford Museums to Christopher Dearlove, 31 Courtlands, Chelmsford, CM1 4DD (tel. 07725 326038, email christopher.dearlove@gmail.com).
